Jordan & Jordan Launches a Veteran Capital Markets Career Forum Webinar Series

New York, NY | September 29, 2022 – Jordan & Jordan, a Veteran owned financial technology company that provides market data solutions, technology, and industry regulatory and research collaboration through FIF (FIF.com) and RIXML (Rixml.org), announces the launch of the Veteran Capital Markets Career Forum (VCMCF). The objective of the VCMCF is to provide no cost informational sessions on the various parts of the securities industry that can assist veterans in launching their careers, as well as to help them in interview preparation and identification of job opportunities.

Through a series of webinar training sessions and interacting with subject matter experts, veterans will be exposed to the various functions within the capital markets space. Initial webinar subjects will be Capital Market Basics followed by an overview of Market Data. Subject matter experts will discuss and be available to answer questions regarding the operation the capitals markets and the types of roles that are available.

The first webinar is scheduled for October 4th at 6pm and covers the Basics of Capital Markets. It is being presented by Brennan Carley and Jim Glenister is open to all veterans. Registration is available online at: <https://bit.ly/3UkEhDd>.

Tom Jordan, President & CEO said “As a veteran who used my military experience to aid in my transition to a successful career in Capital Markets, I value the skills that veterans bring to a financial organization. Capital Markets have many significant functions where Veterans will contribute so much. This program simply aspires to give them the first opportunity.”

Be sure check out the VCMCF website www.vcmcf.org for future webinars or to register for Tuesday’s event.
